review

Happiness is sharing a song

By BETH BRYANT
and SUSAN DULWEBER

Broadway's musical smash-hit, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," slowly seeped and then suddenly boomed into reality with the spirited theme song on its opening night at LHS auditorium Dec. 8.

The play based on Charles Schulz's comic strip "Peanuts" was written by Charles Gesner. Portraying one day in the life of Charlie Brown and the Peanuts Gang, the play frolicked from one escapade to another in a wistful and delightfully simple manner.

Simple and uncomplicated props immediately relaxed the audience and prepared them for an irresistible conglomeration of peanut butter sandwiches, little-red headed girls,
